Dee,

Since I'm the first to write in your book, and since I heard you didn't have any friends I'll be nice and write alot in your book.

A real cool girl with a real big ass! Remember all the fun we had last year. Remember when we danced down the hall and acted like a bunch of little kids. Like I told someone else we should teach all the seniors
the dance and dance at graduation.
Remember me always because
I'll remember you darling

Administration

Three very capable individuals assumed the joint responsibility of directing both faculty and student body throughout a highly progressive school year. Sister Marie Kathleen continued as head principal, carrying out public relations duties and official work for the school. Sister Jean Marie worked as curriculum director. Student-faculty relations director was Mr. Robert Gorey. The efforts of these three administrators were much appreciated, since they kept OLA running smoothly and efficiently.

Academics

Religion

Some of the newest classes in the Religion curriculum were Poverty and Crime, Protest, Moral Decisions, God in Modern Lit., Search for Faith, and J. C. Now.

A big influence on the religious aspect of life were the TEC (Teens Encounter Christ) retreats conducted by Father Richard Rohr. These eventually stemmed into weekly prayer meetings attended by students and adults from all over the Cincinnati area.

Science

Under Mr. Tom Ottke's direction, the science department advanced individual student progress through personal observation. This was accomplished by means of extensive experimentation and researching in chemistry, biology, physics, and Science I classes.

For example, Mary Ann Kasselmann made a complete study of the nervous system of a Rhesus monkey as part of her study.

Mathematics

Math teachers tried to meet the needs of all students in their classes. Miss Cleary and Mrs. Frazier combined Algebra I sections in the balcony, where they used "team teaching" --one girl helping another. Video-tape was also used, along with word and story problems.

The following classes were offered: two kinds of Algebra I and Algebra II, and two classes of geometry. In addition, two girls took calculus and two others studied Math IV.

Social Studies

The emphasis this year was for teachers to specialize in teaching a certain aspect of the courses offered. For example, the sophomores who signed up for World Cultures studied Europe under one teacher and China under another.

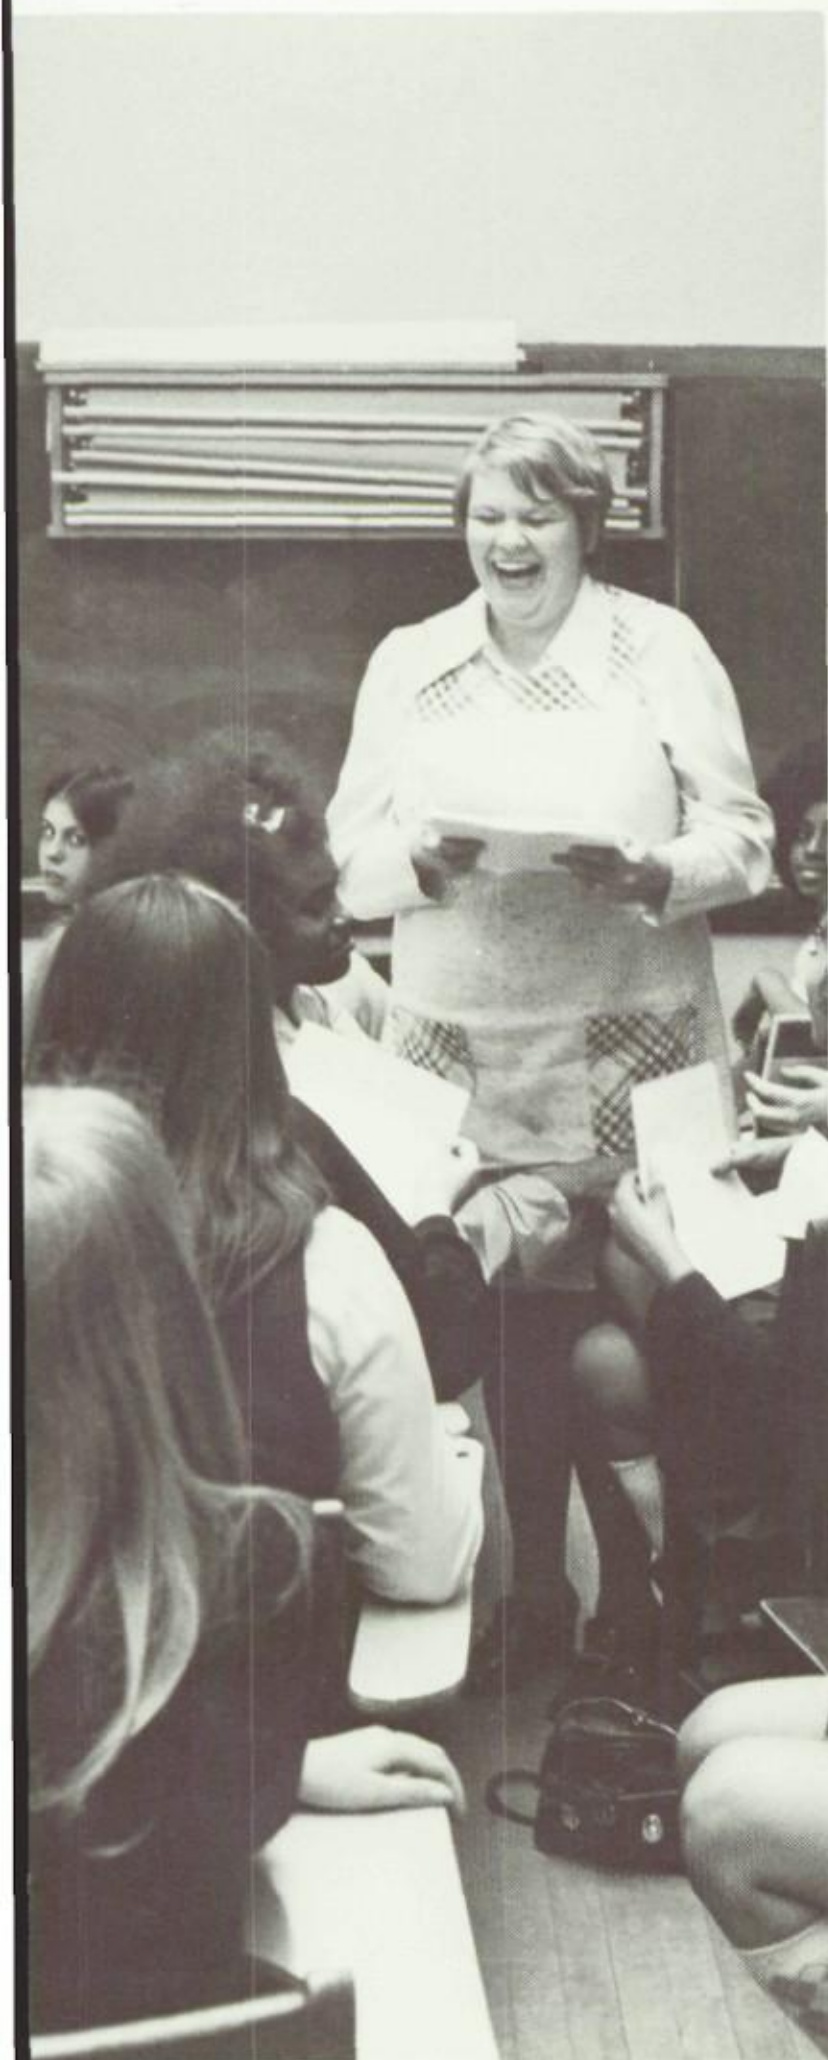

The same idea was initiated in a new program in the seniors' Problems of Democracy class. One quarter was spent studying state and local government, one quarter learning national government, and the other semester was spent taking either economics or sociology.

English

The English department attempted to meet the students' needs by developing additional topics of study. Included in these additions were courses in the study of science fiction novels, and in the technique of speedreading.

Such offerings presented a fresh approach toward the continuous study of English grammar and usage.

ABOVE: Robyn Tippenhauer steals one last look. TOP RIGHT: Mrs. Susan Hague: English I, III, and IV. RIGHT: Mr. Robert Borcer: English I, II, III and IV.

Humanities

Humanities I and II took a close look at man's changing cultures through the ages, surveying areas from art, philosophy, and drama, while exploring music, literature, and religion.

Routine reading and research were relieved by guest speakers, trips to Playhouse in the Park, a trip to Music Hall for a symphony rehearsal, as well as by films and records, with the added benefit of team teaching and much student participation. The aim: To understand the man of the seventies.

TOP: What can you say about a 25 year-old test that died?

Drama

Several new drama classes were added to the curriculum. Besides Dramatic Techniques, Modern American Drama and Shakespeare were offered.

All freshmen were required to take nine weeks of Speech to help them develop poise, diction, improvisation, and acting ability.

Foreign Languages

Either French, Spanish, or both classes comprised the foreign language student's schedule. Although Language III and IV reviewed materials offered in Language I and II, these classes primarily centered around reading, writing, and understanding.

Other areas of interest also sparked achievement. Students ventured to learn carols, to play bingo and scrabble, as well as to visit restaurants to enjoy food prepared in the famous cuisines. The do-ed club continued to enhance the learning of customs and cultures. Even a foreign exchange student challenged Spanish III with first-hand knowledge.

Sewing

For the first time, OLA had a class made up of Clothing III students specifically.

The real interest in Clothing III was witnessed by a constant flow of creative garments, such as crocheted vests and prom dresses, from Room 301.

TOP: Peering through the door, we sense the Christmas spirit at work. LEFT: Sister Lillian Marie: Sewing II-IV. RIGHT: Mrs. Marian Boehm: Sewing I.

Cooking

Cooking, a relatively small class working in six units, consisted of between 18-20 students. The purpose of the course was to instruct students on the basics of cooking and baking. Students participated in actual meal planning and preparation within the classroom as part of the learning process.

Contemporary Living

One highly successful innovative course added to the curriculum was Contemporary Living. The course dealt with problems that newly-weds face together, with the various alternatives available.

Such topics as interior decorating, financing, and child care were discussed and analyzed.

TOP: Choosing color combinations is part of Cindy Payne and Sue Barrett's interior decorating problem.
BOTTOM: Sister Marcella: Clothing I, Foods, and Contemporary Living.

Art

Revision of the art curriculum to take care of student-needs resulted in Art II studying ink techniques, while Art III concentrated on contemporary art as outlined by Leonard Brooks. Art IV found satisfaction in contracting for their work. Visits from leading commercial art schools contributed to career learnings.

TOP: Sister Laetitia discusses an Art History project with Art III students.

Health

With the cooperation of the school nurse, Mrs. Geier, Miss Doerger encouraged freshmen and sophomore girls to take a greater interest in their health habits. By offering such courses as child care and first-aid in the regular curriculum, each girl gained practical experience for healthful living.

LEFT: Miss Jean Doerger: Health and Physical Education.

If you ever walked into the gym and saw girls kicking their legs up high to a musical beat, you found the Phys. Ed. class. These were some of the warm-up exercises done at the beginning of class. Besides exercising to music, the girls learned gymnastic stunts, different sports, and even square dancing.

Business

The business department offered two new classes: Office Practice Fundamentals and Personal Typing.

The former was designed for juniors who work at packet assignments, while the latter is a one-semester course tailored to benefit college-prep students.

Another innovative concept is a second bookkeeping class for personal use.

The newly formed Future Secretaries of America Club enjoyed great popularity since its inception in March.

Library

To many students, the library facilities, supervised by Sister Rose Theresa and assistant librarians, Sister Eymard, Sister Benice, and Mrs. Murray offered many helps in the pursuit of their academic tasks.

Besides the new books and magazines, A-V equipment was a popular resource for both teachers and students. However, the quiet atmosphere was most appreciated.

Services

Versatile, hard-working, and always willing to lend a helping hand--This proved to be the perfect description of Mr. Harold Steggeman and his assistants as they worked to keep OLA's maintenance running smoothly.

Under the management of Mr. Carpenter and the familiar people behind the cafeteria counters, the lunchtime rush was met with efficiency, smiles, and lots of food at the same time.

These "behind-the-scenes" people were greatly appreciated for their unlimited services.

More Services

Always there to help students and to keep records in order, the office staff, book store, and guidance department offered new approaches to standard problems.

Mrs. Helen Hapner, a newcomer, worked as office receptionist and secretary.

The guidance department continued to update its approaches to student counseling. In order to promote a more casual, friendly atmosphere, even the offices were redecorated. Miss Betty Bond, the newest addition to the staff, advised the sophomores and freshmen, while Mrs. Carol Morgan continued as advisor to juniors and seniors.

Sister Marita extended her services to mending books along with transferring them from class to class at each quarter. In her spare moments, she made novelties for her gift nook.

Organizations

Adult Organizations

The Alumnae, PTA, and Booster Club worked diligently for the success of the festival and sponsored many less-publicized improvements around the school.

The PTA alone donated four $100 scholarships to incoming freshmen and raised over $4,000 for school improvements. The Boosters fixed the ventilation fans in the cafeteria, cleaned numerous storage rooms and remodeled the chemistry lab. Plans for installing new shower room fixtures also were made.

The improvements not only made the students' life more comfortable, but also showed everyone, without a doubt, the great interest our parents have in our education.

Student Council

During the summer months, committees were formed and leadership workshops were held to train the girls for their duties. Dances, in-school spiritual days, the Care-Free Gum contest, the Variety Show, and the Fashion Show were a few of the activities that this organization sponsored.

Work was also done to update their constitution through open meetings. Ways of promoting the image of OLA were likewise explored.

N.H.S. and It's Academic

Academic achievement received special recognition through the National Honor Society and the "It's Academic" team.

Members of the National Honor Society (sophomores, juniors, and seniors chosen by the faculty) achieved high honor roll listings and were active in school affairs. Initiation of new members and publication of the school's literary magazine, THE TAPESTRY, were their main activities.

With the help of Miss Jill Kennedy, the three-member "It's Academic" team won their first game with Madeira and Lloyd Memorial, but they lost in the play-off.

All of these girls deserve our congratulations for the honor they won for OLA through the exercise of their talents.

Beta Sigma Coalition

The biggest project of this club was a special two-hour assembly in April. The session's purpose was to acquaint the student-body with the organization and to establish a basic understanding of black culture through dances, poems, songs, fashions, and commercials. A black skit, "Betty White and Shirley Black," read by Roz Starddard and choreographed by Shirley Merritt topped the performance.

Personal Development

Often referred to as Sodality, this program stressed two main goals: to help each girl build her self-image and security and to help all members to relate better to each other.

Both seniors and juniors participated in these small group sessions, along with their adult moderators.

The personal atmosphere of the home meetings, joined with the fun of large-group activities, such as an ice-skating party, a movie, and a picnic at Winton Woods, made this organization well worth joining.

S.T.O.P.

S. T. O. P. projects ranged from a clothing drive for Appalachia to a can drive for Father John's Powerhouse and a toy drive for inner city. A trip was also taken to Appalachia, where members became acquainted with conditions there. Seven or eight girls assisted the Dominican Sisters with a tutoring program, and two Coffee Houses raised money to help redecorate the children's ward at Longview State Hospital in addition to the above activities.

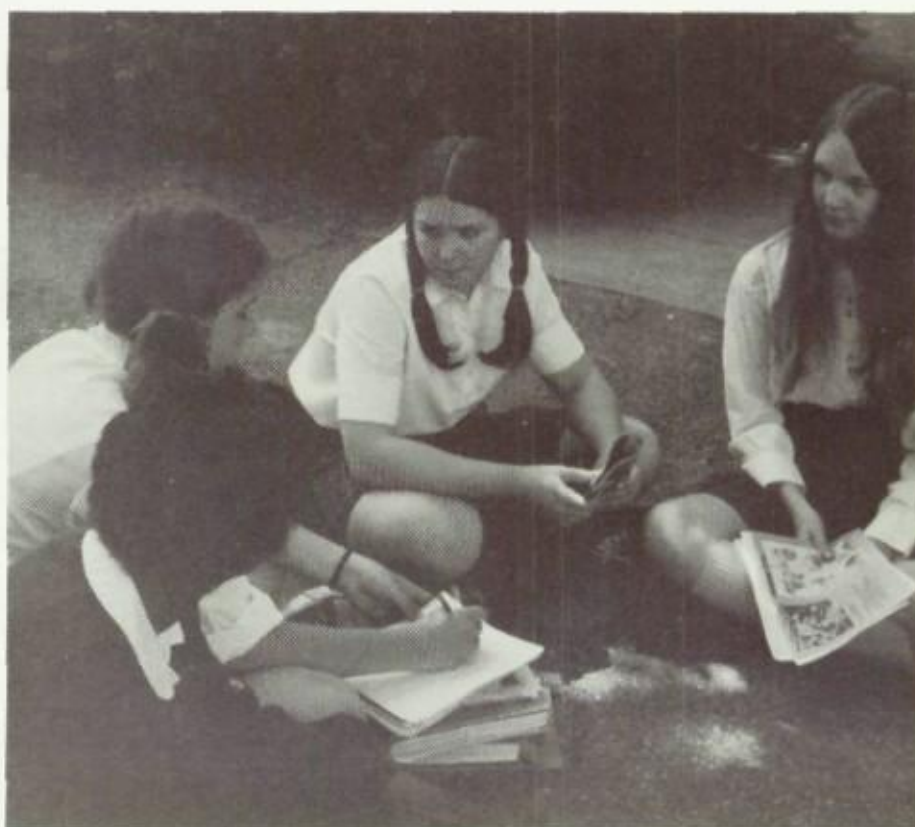

TOP: Methods for accelerating the results of the S.T.O.P. can drive are tossed about by members.

 BELOW: Ideas from a brainstorm session are immediately recorded.

Red Cross

The Red Cross group sponsored many get-togethers. Besides, they organized a Christmas party for underprivileged children and a Valentine party for the injured at Veteran's Hospital.

The purpose of these events was to span the gap between some people and their problems, with everyone experiencing a moment of happiness.

Herald

The Herald was staffed by Journalism I and II classes. The newspaper reflected the people, places, and events of the school year. Two paper drives were held and note pads were sold to pay for the publishing costs and the special effects used in the newspaper.

Musical Ensembles

The three ensembles (Senior Chorus, Junior Chorus, and Quin Trio) participated in many successful programs, including OLA's spring and fall concerts.

While concentrating on their own group activities, Junior Chorus prepared selections for area grade schools, and Senior Chorus coordinated many of their program with Roger Bacon's glee club. The latter group also performed for Roger Bacon's Christmas concert, for PTA meetings, and for a school Mass. They sang for incoming freshmen at OLA as well.

Quin Trio, sporting new pantsuits, sang at several weddings and for the "Ohio Music Educator's Association Concert at Oxford, where they received recognition for outstanding talent.

Sports

This year besides having a volleyball team, OLA expanded their sports program to include basketball and gymnastics. In this way, many different girls developed skills in spiking, dribbling, vaulting, and tumbling.

TOP: Tom Mashmeir v.s. Dottie Nurre

Volleyball

The varsity and reserve volleyball teams initiated many new approaches to the game this year. "Power Volleyball" was the name, and the three main techniques that were used included the bump, the set, and the spike.

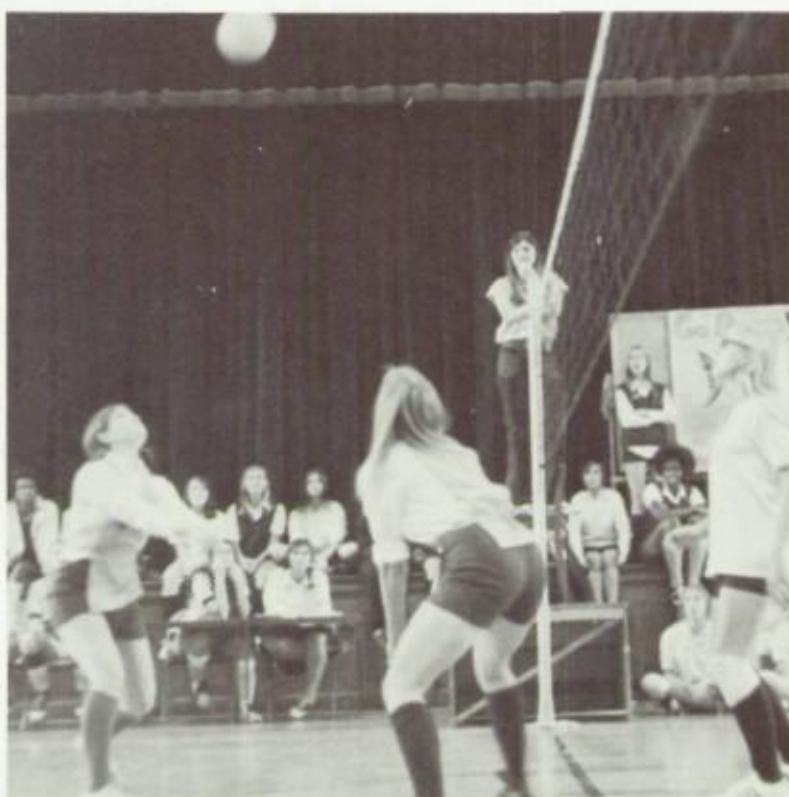

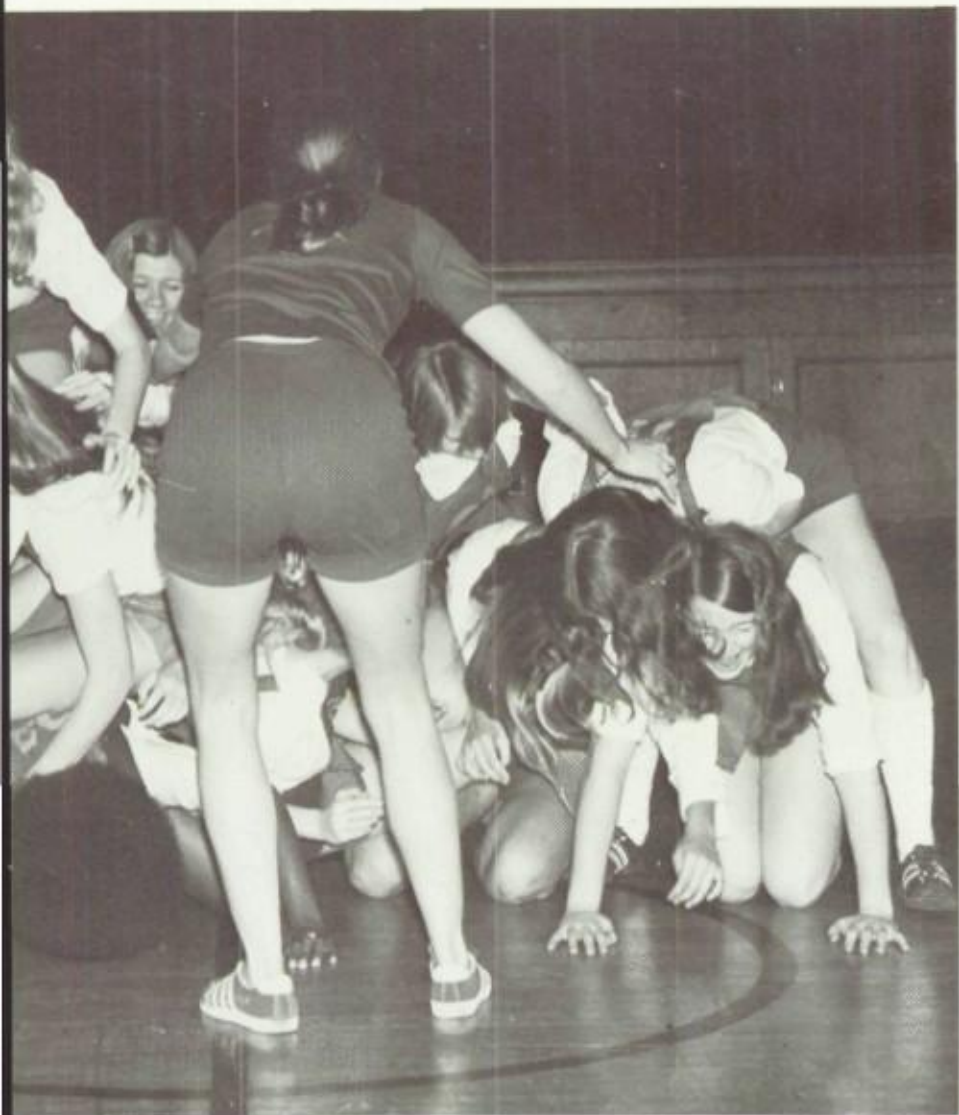

Along with their regular season games, both teams played in the annual student-teacher game, competed with I. C. A. at Oldenburg, and finished a very active season in a game with the Roger Bacon Senate.

Basketball

The basketball team, in its first season won four games and lost two. As they prepared for the game, the girls warmed up with standard drills to coordinate their passing ability, guarding and defense, running and pivoting, shooting and rebounding. Next they practiced their foul shots, and finally they divided into teams and played in an actual game situation, working out their different offensive plays.

With such efficient practices, several times a week, it is no wonder our basketball team stacked up so many points.

TOP RIGHT: Let me have it!

Drill Team

Dressed in colorful green and gold uniforms, the drill team represented OLA in parades on Veteran's Day, St. Patrick's Day, Loyalty Day, Memorial Day, and Flag Day. Throughout the year, they learned dance routines as well as marching in drills and tried to raise needed funds.

These pictures show the team marching on Memorial Day, when they won an award at the Hyde Park parade-- a first in non-military marching.

Activities

Senior-Freshie Day

A warm welcome greeted the Class of '75 as they met with seniors in the school gym for the traditional Senior-Freshie Day.

Sponsored by the Class of '72, the October 10 program included games, skits, refreshments, and a special surprise--freshmen, sporting green and gold spirit-beanies, were each presented with a senior "big sister."

The day marked the beginning of new spirit and friendship between the two classes.

TOP: Hey, Peg, where's your beanie?
BELOW: Rita Mollman scrubs the emblem.

Senior Date Dance

On December 18, our gym was transformed into a colorful display of lights, tinsel, greens, and ornaments for a night-to-remember.

Seniors and their dates were enticed to the dance floor by the music of "The London Street Diplomats." An announcement of the sixteen title winners climaxed the evening.

TOP: What will you have -- Pringles or Hussman's?

Can Drive

Juniors organized and, as tradition dictates, won the can drive. The school collected 41,000 cans, which were distributed to Father John's Powerhouse, the Little Sisters of the Poor, and individual families.

The can drive skits took struggling OLA-ers all over the world in their efforts to meet the needs of starving people.

RIGHT: Heroines are in a stew about the drive.

Our Town

OLA's big dramatic presentation was Thornton Wilder's OUR TOWN, a play in three acts, commenting on the beauty of an ordinary, simple life. The production, under the guidance of Miss Angeline Uhrig, was coordinated by Pat Donohoue and directed by Peggy Rossbach.

Success was marked by numerous compliments and an abundance of flowers, gifts, and tears shared by the entire cast.

Christmas Fun

The 1971 Christmas assembly was highlighted by music rather than by drama. Quin-Trio and Junior Chorus, accompanied by a brass choir from Roger Bacon, sang the traditional carols. Other less famous carols were performed by both groups individually.

Included in the program were a sing-along, a harp solo, and a surprise visit from Santa Claus in the person of Mr. Gannon.

Father-Daughter Dance

On March 11, the seniors and their daring dads danced to the music of Dick Purdy. Our school gym was the "Heaven" of all activity. Barefooted, screaming, and wild, the seniors sang the school song and danced the Bunny Hop. The dads attempted to keep up with their little girls . . . some succeeded . . . others??

Hot and very worn out many dads and their daughters retreated to the Wigwam and Sorrento's for a bite to eat.

Sadie Hawkins Dance

The Phoenix Band offered all who attended the Sadie Hawkins Dance a memorable October 30.

Wearing authentic hillbilly outfits, couples participated in wheelbarrow racing and live square dancing. Some took advantage of "Rev. Walker" to have their "marriage" performed during the intermission. Even the chaperones had a good time.

In-School Spiritual Day

New aspects of religion were offered to students, as December 8 and May 19 became OLA's first In-School Spiritual Days. Seniors and juniors attended the winter session, alternating with the sophomores and freshmen in the spring.

Speakers, discussions, movies, prayer and penance services, and rock entertainment made each day's format reflective, relevant, and turned-on to Christ. Strong, enthusiastic involvement ran high as students of all ages planned, organized, and participated in the days' activities.

Festival Fun

and boosters also sponsored booths.

Mr. Kohstall and student representatives watched the chance stubs roll around until 10:00, when honors went to the freshmen class. Proceeds of the drive were set aside to take care of some of the needed repairs of the school.

Sweetheart Dance

On February 19, couples swayed to music of the Heywoods as the "Morning of Our Lives" became a reality. Each girl received a pink rose and the traditional heart booklet favor. Newly incorporated into the semi-formal was the "Heart Dance," a kind of musical partners. The selection of sweethearts climaxed the evening.

ABOVE: I didn't know Keds made a shoe for formal wear.

 BELOW: The Heywoods provide entertainment, playing the theme song and other romantic selections.
 BOTTOM: Cupid does his work well.

Girl and Her City

Representatives from girls' high schools from all over the city came together to listen to speakers about all facets of city government in Cincinnati.

Topping the session was the election of a girl mayor and nine councilwomen.

Six juniors represented OLA and found the experience of sitting in on a council meeting very worth-while.

TOP: Councilman Jerry Springer spoke to interested students about Girl and Her City Day.

Mini-Week

Teachers, students, and outside experts became involved in an unusual educational experience during the week of March 23. Courses were elected through a form drawn up by Sister Marie Anne's religion class. This included topics that students were interested in, but were unable to take during the regular school year, either because of the time element or because ordinary classes could not offer them.

Terry Klosterman coordinated the program which included an evaluation of all courses offered.

 TOP RIGHT: Ginny Bonomini and Eileen Burns work as a team decorating a cake.
 MIDDLE RIGHT: Mr. Kim demonstrates one technique of breaking away from an assailant.
 BOTTOM RIGHT: A fight to the finish is on between Sue Helscher and Rita Koeffel.

Carefree!

No, That's not the name of our emotions as school ended. It is rather the name of a gum which most of the students won't ever forget. OLA entered the Care Free Gum contest sponsored by WSAI and for a month furiously wrote that name morning, noon, and night-during classes, during lunch, during everything! But it paid off because we won! The prize was a concert by the Grass Roots at convention center enjoyed by all.

ABOVE: Let's have a nice big smile!

TOP: As Dave deals the lethal blow, people in the audience cry out in disbelief.
 ABOVE: Terry Klosterman and Pat Barum return to OLA's stage as duet partners once again.
 TOP CENTER: A line of our energetic seniors bounces to rhythms of the Charleston.
 BOTTOM CENTER: Salt Rock II performs between acts of the Variety Show.

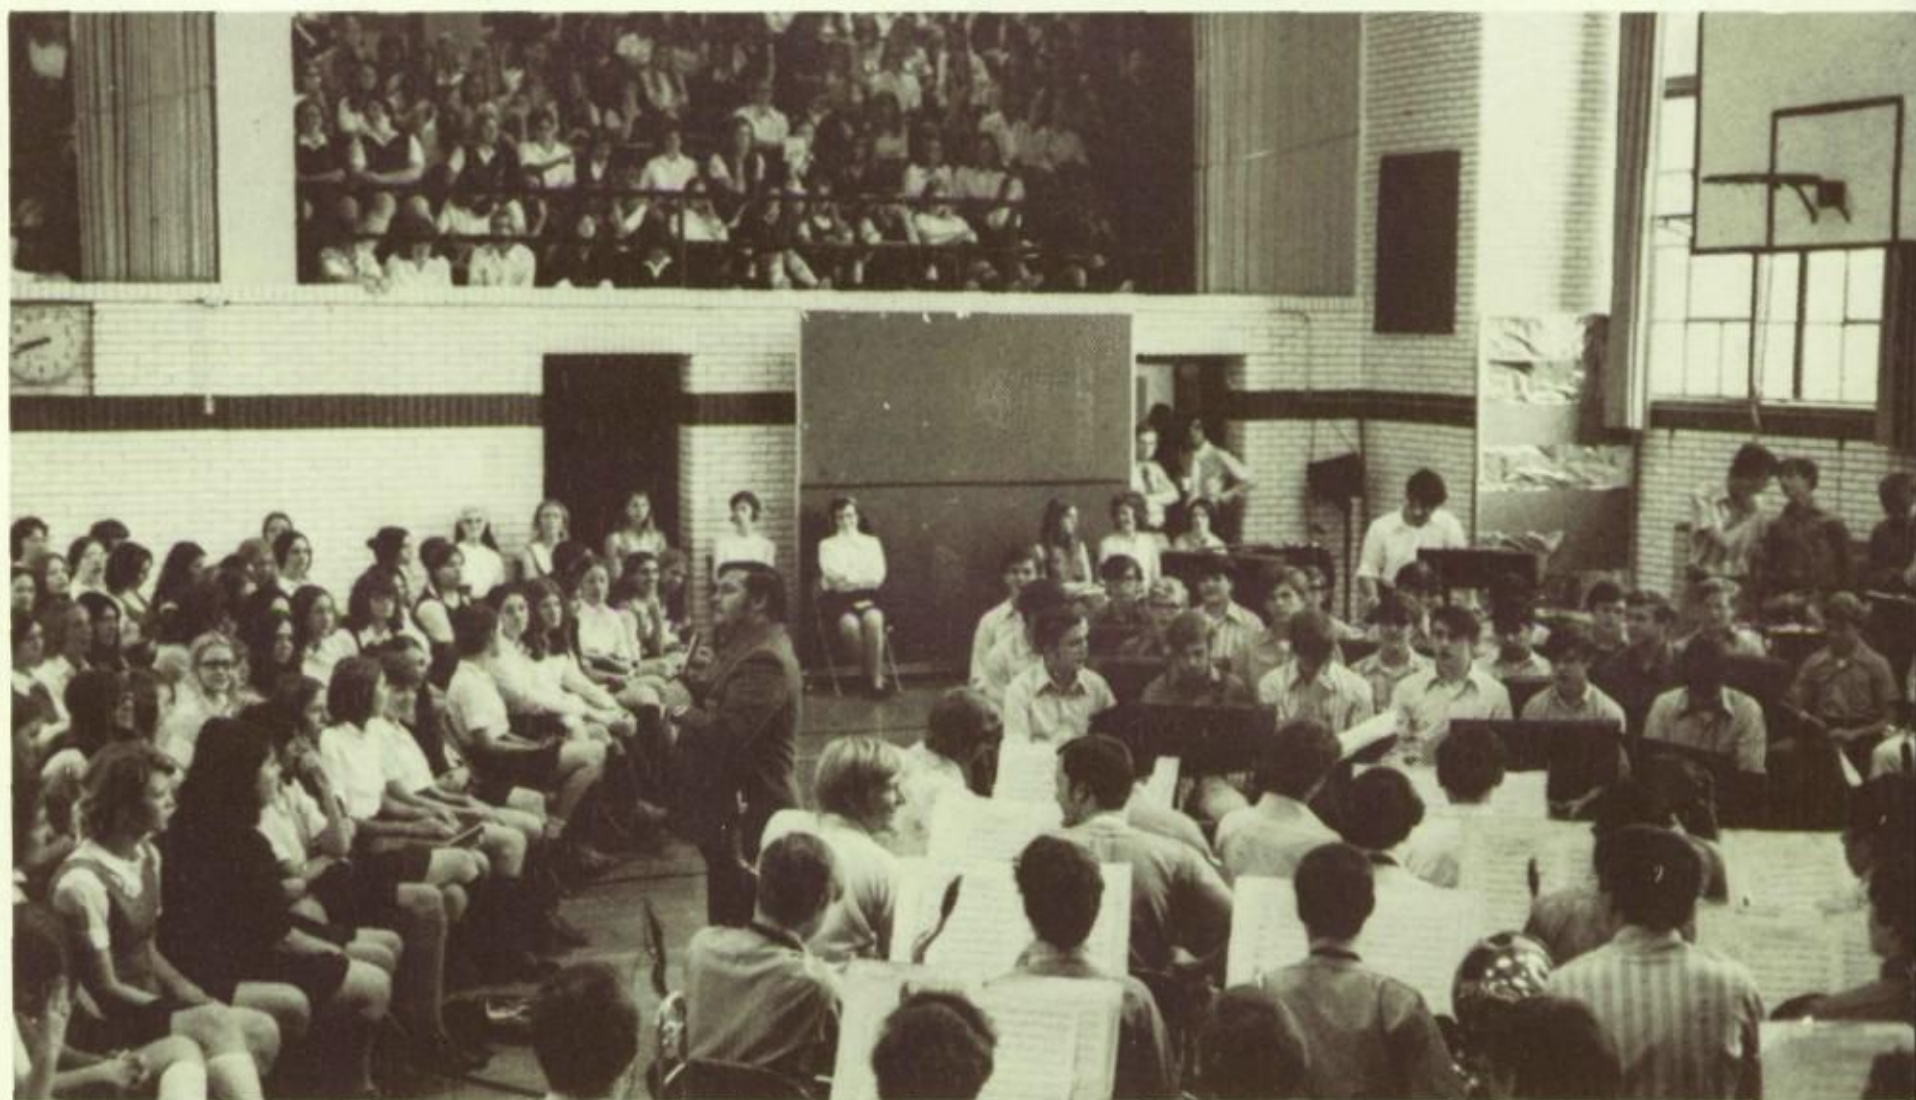

TOP: "Warm Woolies" are discussed by Ellen Marchant as Cher and "Doc" O'Connor.
 BOTTOM: Rosie Laughlin charms the audience as she accompanies herself with the guitar.

Roger Bacon Band Concert

On May 29, Bacon's No. 1 band gave a concert which paid tribute to our student body. We were treated to popular numbers as well as modern favorites during the first three mods of the day-- a welcome relief from the usual classes.

TOP: Every available spot is taken.
BOTTOM: Mr. Neal dedicates number to the OLA girls.

Fashion Show

Three student volunteers offered their services to the PTA for a part in the fall fashion show, a money-making endeavor. Everything from coats to sleep-wear was modelled for the enjoyment of the mothers and their friends. Outfits were provided by Harolde's, Inc.

Underclassmen

Freshmen

The freshmen took a while, but they finally proved themselves. For the first time in history, they won the chance drive--traditionally the senior's big win.

As a class, they planned many outside activities: a hayride, a "Big Sister--Little Sister" roller skating party, a square dance, a Red's baseball game, and finally their class picnic. From the reports filtering back to school, they also learned how to stuff themselves at economy prices--also a great activity!

Sophomores

The sophomores gained impetus as a class with a Halloween party, an over-night, and a class picnic. These activities blossomed into unity, as the group won the ad drive and the paper drive.

For the festival, the class prepared a skit and sponsored a booth. In the field of studies, they journeyed to Wright-Patterson Airport, to Oak Ridge, and to the theatre for "Mary, Queen of Scots," as well as to Playhouse in the Park. It was a busy year!

Juniors

A four-mile canoe trip down the Little Miami River initiated the year's fun for the juniors. Following close upon this event, the class got the can drive on the road with a stimulating skit that brought unheard-of results. The juniors alone collected over half of the school total of 41,000 cans.

Among the unique activities of the class overnight was an auction to bolster dues. However, of all the events on the calendar, the ring ceremony with the theme of FRIENDS was the greatest. The buffet ran second in popularity, because the girls were so close to the graduates.

Summertime promised yet more fun in the form of a picnic and another canoe trip.

Seniors

Seniors

Much of the time the seniors were as divided as they were unified. The division was partly caused by the girls attempting to make everything meaningful, even if it meant breaking some of the traditions of the school.

The three big events that all of the seniors looked forward to were: their class trips (whether camping or lolling on the beach), the prom, and finally their graduation.

It was a good four years--fun, happy, sad, angry--but not erasable.

Spring of '72

May 19, 9 p.m., and the doors of the Blue Room at Convention Center were open for the "Spring of '72" to blossom. Blue Tater entertained, playing the junior and senior themes, "I Want to Make It With You" and "Precious and Few."

The climax of the evening was the crowning of Prom Queen. Six girls, Lisa Biedenbach, Sue Hinnenkamp, Jeanne Junker, Deb Kathman, Sally Quammen, and Madonna Kussman vied for the title.

Cherished remembrances of that wonderful evening linger along with our dainty favors and the "Spring of '72".

During our four years, many friendships were started, and many things were shared, but through our troubles, it all boils down to one thing—
— — "We Care!" — —

Amaranth Business Staff

The business staff has one of the most difficult jobs--managing the money! They were responsible for raising the money, paying the bills, and keeping records of books that were sold. They also laid out the ad pages and took care of the typing in that section.

From homeroom representatives to the ad page typists and Miss Helen Coard --our thanks!

Amaranth

Our staff had the same hassles as do all staffs--deadlines, lost pictures, lost write-ups, and numerous communication problems--but these were finally weathered and resolved.

The yearbook emerged eventually, the product of arguments over which colors, techniques, and print to use, how to include the theme and what the content should be--all to a good cause--to present this school year clearly and concisely.

The staff struggled hard and long, but finally reached page 228.

TOP: Sister Laetitia: Moderator.
MIDDLE: Two heads are better than three.
BOTTOM: THE STAFF.

Dolores,

A very strange person? who was lots of grove things, like sweeping on the deck & picking it up and carrying it around in your hand after sweeping it off the deck, you are a very pretty girl (justifying to make you feel good), remember all the fun we had dancing down the halls, how weird, maybe me you & Lucia ran march in the parade again, that was fun, remember the GENIE born in P.O.B. he is really cute too bad he got married, and Mr. Trull, your

Still got a chance with him but you better hurry,

Don't forget our old Eng. Teacher, and all the curved faces you make. To a dumb kid who

I don't think has ever won a bra in her life, maybe you just feel you don't need one, oh well, I guess I better quit.

lots of luck with what's his name

Dolores, I mean Tom your future HOB.

Don't forget to invite me to the wedding.

D.E.F. (don't ever forget)

Tom

Dolores,

To a real weird person who I've known for a long time. Remember all the fun we had in clothing I class with Sr. Marcella? That was really a nice class. And our gym class with Miss McLain? We tried hard to get out of that class whenever possible.

And Remember in Sophomore ~~class~~ year, Brennan's English class? And Religion last year with that hunk of man, Fr. Jaquez, + Tom Gannon? And this year, P.O.D.+, office practice? Well I'll invite you to next years picnic, but I'm not promising that you'll be able to find me. Good Luck in the future with Dale, + in all you do. Don't be so happy to talk to Dale when he calls.

Good luck, Red!

Mrs. Dale Barrett!

Dale + Dale
forever!

Love
Tricia

P.S. I crack me up, yay!
